Thoughts on Self

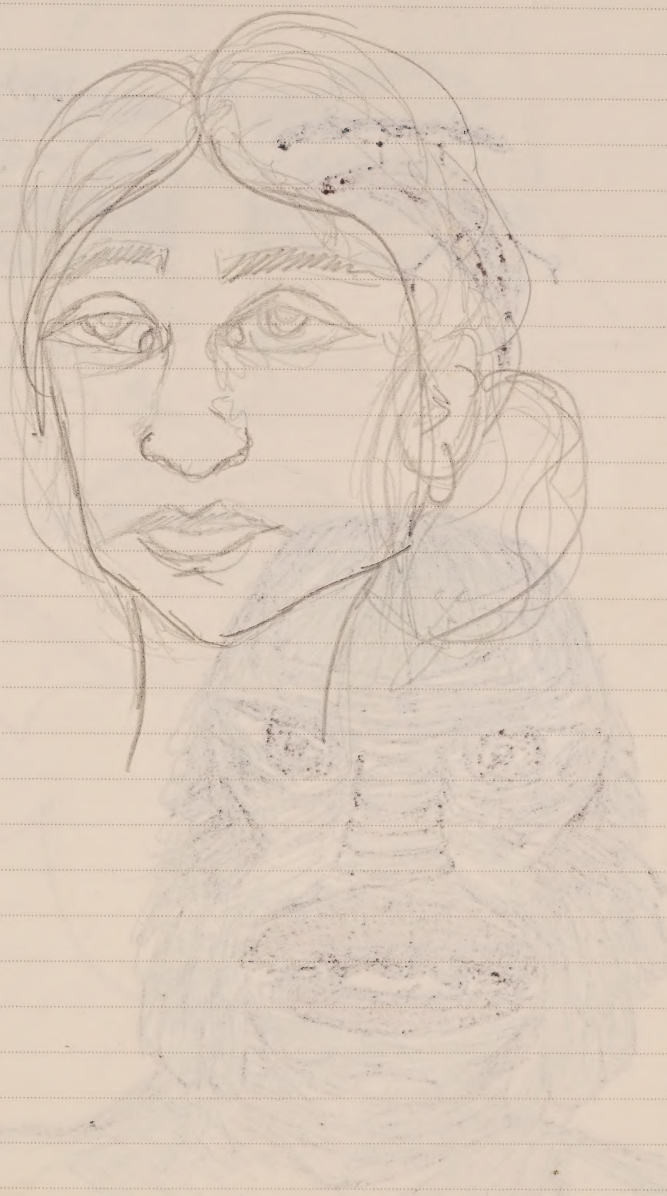

"I exist as more than words. I exist as more than words. I exist as more than words. I exist as more than words. I exist as more than words. Is there a difference between thinking this in words and feeling it?"

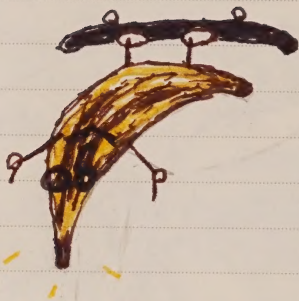

- If the self is defined as a thinker/knower then we can never know anything. We are Nothing if we are a thinker, a thought thinking itself.
- If we are primarily an engager, a user of objects then we can know, but knowledge is merely things defined as such.
- If ~~the~~ thinking can't be trusted in defining the self then we must use engagement.
- ~~What~~ What is the difference between being used by an object and using an object when the difference must be felt, not thought
- There is no difference. Food calling to be eaten and you wanting food are one in the same
- The self is external; the self is inseparable from objects
- How do I know the voices in my head are mine?
- I don't. Perhaps they are mere callings of the world.
- How do I make myself get up in the morning and function with these thoughts? How do I push these thoughts aside and ENGAGE when, upon waking up, I am Nothing. I am only thought thinking itself, as blank as the ceiling in my room

Belonging occurs when one loses oneself and discovers that one is in what he lost himself to. Relationships work this way. We give ourselves to someone only to, hopefully, have ourselves given back.

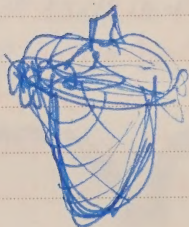

I sit here staring
staring at the paper, I guess

For a purpose? No, there is no such thing
Just here to fill in time.
We're all just confused and bored mammals

But there is none, and that's ok.
It doesn't take away the beauty of you, your experiences, or feelings.
Nothing matters so fill up your time
with people and things that make you smile.

Consciousness, emotions, thoughts, memories

So does life...?

How to Use a Tampon For the 1st Time.

Relax. It's much easier to punch ^{verb} a tampon when you're relaxed. It usually takes a few tries before being able to comfortably cr ^{verb} a tampon, so don't worry.

A tampon is actually made up of 2 basketballs ^{plural noun} — the tampon itself that you insert in your body, and the finger ^{noun} colorful ^{adjective} you use to insert it.

Step 1: Wash your body and then unwrap the tampon like it's a Christmas present. The applicator tip should be rounded and glasses ^{plural noun} should hang out the bottom of the applicator.

Step 2: Get comfortable. Try yelling ^{verb ending in -ing} on the toilet with nuts ^{body part} apart or standing with one ear ^{body part} on the toilet seat.

Step 3: Insert the applicator: hold the applicator plunger using your neck ^{body part} and middle finger. Place tip into your tee ^{body part} at a 45° angle. Gently slide the applicator all the way into your shin ^{body part} until your fingers touch your eyebrow ^{body part}.

I decided to not sleep at home because I felt really lonely and sad. So I decided to come to the station instead to feel a little better. I guess it helped? I don't feel like crying anymore at least. I am a sad person inside even though I seem really happy on the outside, lol sometimes I can't hide the sadness sometimes though so I just exist as sad. It's great!!!! So great! I just want to get this down on paper because I felt like someone must relate to this feeling. I didn't even really cover anything but yeah. I'm always sad.

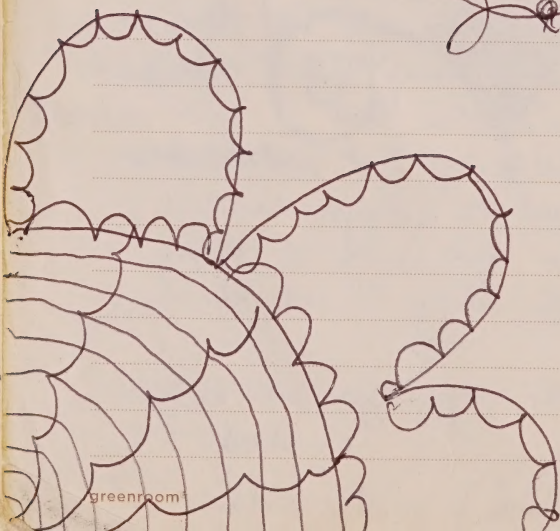

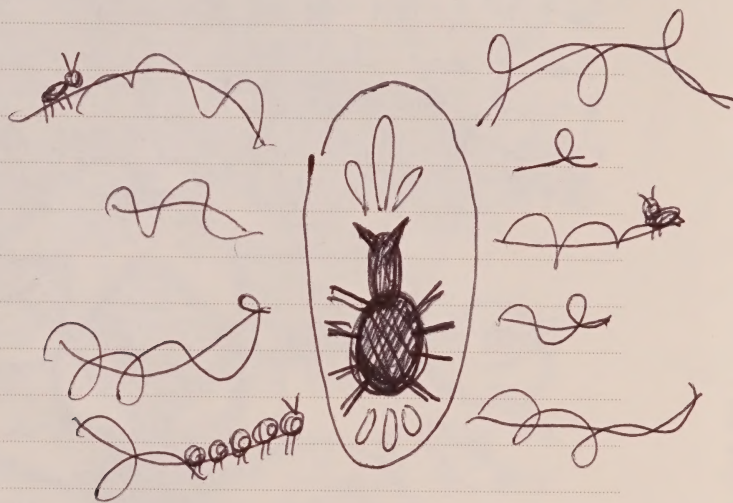

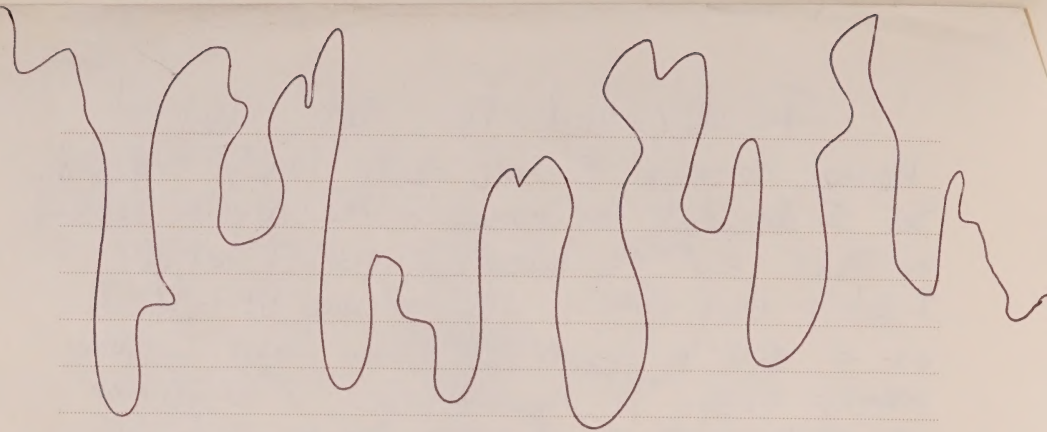

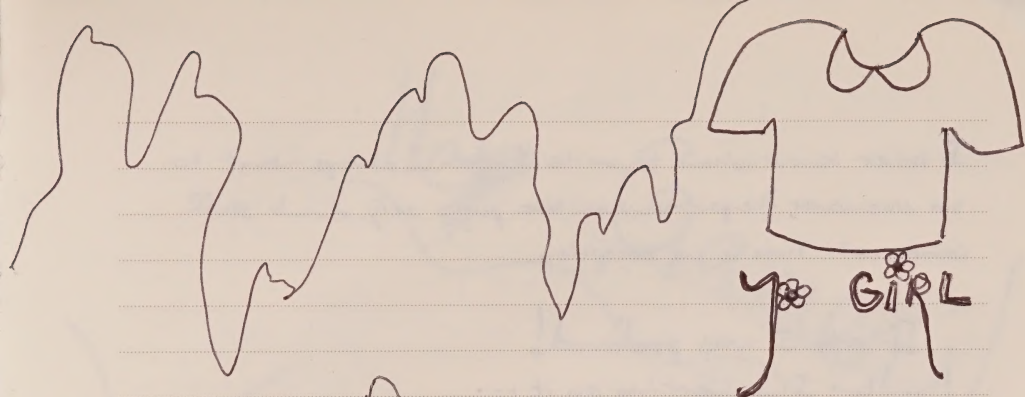

Dear sad,

I know we probably don't know each other but I hope you feel less sad. It'd be cool if knowing that I hope you feel less sad actually made your sad go away but it prob won't. But I still hope you know that if your sadness filled a balloon I would pop that motherfucker until all the gross sad particles disappeared and went away. Or if your sad was a thing I could hold I would fling it into the sun.

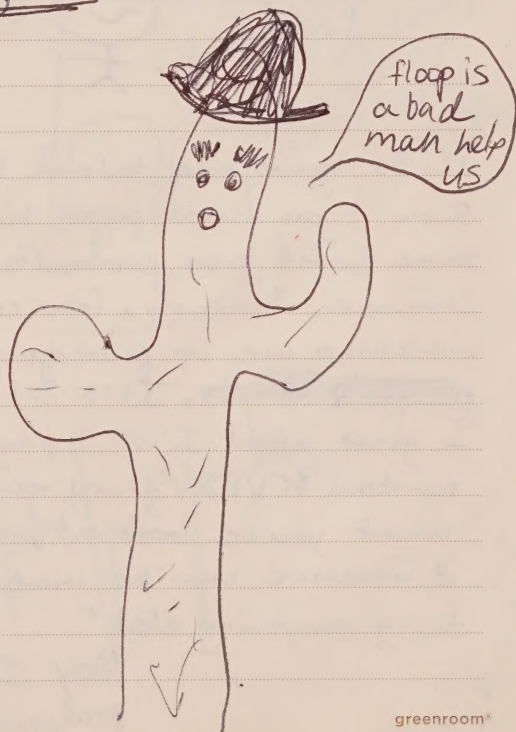

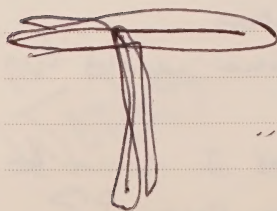

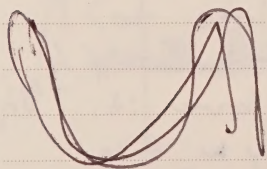

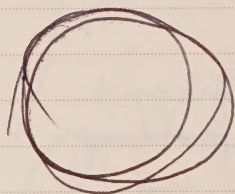

So hope you feel better
dod.

Thank
for being you
I really appreciate

I never know what to write in here. I always want to but whenever the pen touches the page only dumb stuff comes out. This is no exception.

If only I was profound!

... but I'm working on it...

I'd say rip this out but frankly the artwork on the other side of this page is too beautiful to discard. Sadly drawing, like writing, is a talent that continues to elude me.

Proof:

(self-portrait)

I do have one talent though! I can't show it on these pages but I can photograph some bomb ass portraits if given the chance. Seriously, few come close to matching me in photography ~~and I say myself~~. It's lit, I love it. I guess what I'm trying to say in this random KVRX diary entry is "Do what you're best at, no greater difference can be made in the world doing anything else".

Hey I guess I can be profound! who knew?!

Purpose

Honestly, life is pointless. But realizing that is liberating because you don't have to need to strive toward some point or purpose in life. Life is meaningless. Life is pointless. That's OK! You can just do whatever the FUCK you want. Do what makes you happy. Do what makes you sad. Do whatever you damn well please and fuck some "greater purpose."

Yeah, but how do you surmount the inevitable suffering in life sans a sense of purpose?

I've been living for awhile with the same "I'm gonna do me" attitude, but I still lay in bed with shaking anxiety about my own ability to self-sustain happiness within the natural downs of life. My grandma died a little bit ago in a car wreck. A fucking car wreck. I know life is meaningless or pointless or whatever, but what if the thing that makes you happy is to have a purpose (read: to give something of personal value to the collective) and ~~if~~ what if the collective doesn't really seem to like you as much as you like it/them? How tf are you supposed to self sustain in such a ~~an~~ ~~an~~ ~~an~~ world?
